FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

WHAT IS EGYPTIAN COTTON?

Egypt's year round moderate climate is perfect for cotton plantation giving it a superior quality. Egyptian cotton is acknowledged as the best quality, longest staple cotton in the world. Fine linen begins with fine cotton, and the quality of the cotton depends on the lengths of individual fibers, or staples-the longer the staple the better the quality cotton. Longer staples can be combed finer to remove more small fibers, allowing the cotton to be spun into a finer textured thread with more tensile strength, and woven into a softer, more lustrous fabric.

WHAT IS CARDED AND COMBED COTTON?

Once raw cotton is blended and cleaned it is "carded", to remove any short staples and dirt that can cause yarn breakage in weaving. While carding will remove some 5 percent of the fibers, combing is much more thorough, removing a further 10 to 15 percent. This leaves the longest staples ready for spinning into yarn that is stronger and finer to touch yarn that will produce a higher quality towel or sheet as in AME made to order range of sheets and towels.

WHAT IS WARP AND WEFT?

Warp is the thread of yarn running (lengthwise) in a sheet or towel and weft is the thread running (widthwise) in a sheet or towel.

WHAT IS THREAD COUNT?

Thread count is simply a measure of how many threads warp (lengthwise) and weft (widthwise) and woven into one square inch (American and European standard) of fabric.

WHAT IS SHRINKAGE?

The shrinkage of textiles can be reduced by the use of low-shrinkage fibers and threads, the special processing of textiles to reduce the swelling of dampened fibers, the pre-shrinking of finished textiles on cloth-shrinking apparatus, and decanting. Shrinkage is inevitable; the amount though depends on the quality of the cotton and the machinery used in the manufacture of the item. Please check your standards for allowable shrinkage.

WHAT IS COTTON SATEEN?

The way in which a fabric is woven also has an effect on the feel. our cotton sateen stripe and check sheets and duvet covers for example are softer than those with a classic linen weave. A sateen weave has more warp threads on the top surface resulting in a silk like touch and appealing luster.
